Matt McCarthy is a 32-year sales veteran of Sloan Lubrication Systems and has become an expert compressor lubrication advisor to the oil, gas, refining, chemical, and food industries. He has invested most of his career in sales-focused roles but also has extensive hands-on experience in field work, including installations, troubleshooting, and maintenance. His current position as Regional Sales Representative – North Central and Southeast US, allows him to bring his vast application knowledge to the industry and affords him opportunities to collaborate on the industry’s most challenging issues.

In addition to being a part of Sloan, Matt has been on the Board of Directors of the EGCR (Eastern Gas Compression Roundtable) where he has served for 28 years in various capacities including chairmen of several prominent committees. He is also a member of the GMC Planning Committee. Matt resides in Saxonburg, PA.
